Numb. 1358

The Daily Gazetteer.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27. 1739.

No. 1356.

To the Author of the DAILY GAZETTEER.

SIR,

IS now above * a Year since you took Notice in your Paper that one of the Correspondents of the Gentleman's Magazine had charg'd MILTON with having adopted the Arian Principle into his Paradise Lost: And that Writer producing no Paſſage out of that Poem to ſupport his Aſſertion, you call'd upon him to do it in three Months Time, or elſe to ſubmit to be thought ſome Popiſh Tool who had hung out that Falſity to diſcredit a Work which was intended to laſh both Pagan and Popiſh Idolatry.

The Event has verify'd what you ſuggeſted, and nothing is more common than for thoſe honeſt Men to call Names when they have no Facts to produce. Indeed nothing could poſſibly have been advanc'd more groundleſs than this Calumny; for MILTON's greateſt Enemies allow him to be ſtrictly orthodox in that Poem.

The only Paſſage which might ſeem to be of ſuch a Complexion is plainly wrong printed; and to make your Readers Amends for the Trouble I have given them, I will ſet it right.

The Perplex'd Paſſage is this in the Second Book.

' Th'undaunted Fiend what this might be admir'd;
' Admir'd, not fear'd; God, and his Son except,
' Created Thing nought valu'd He, nor ſhunn'd.

All the Confuſion in this Paſſage is owing to its being wrong printed, and to the Miſplacing the Words Not and Nought; Miſtakes eaſy to be made when the Author was not capable of reviſing his Copy.

I believe it will not bear a Diſpute but that it ſhould be writ in the Manner following:

' Th'undaunted Fiend what this might be admir'd;
' Admir'd! nought fear'd, God and his Son except,
' Created thing not valu'd he, nor ſhunn'd.

To produce Inſtances to ſupport the Uſe of the Word admir'd in this figurative Manner would be endleſs: In looking over the Three firſt Books, I find MILTON has employ'd this Manner of Expreſſion Thirty-nine times, and I dare ſay, in the whole Poem above a hundred times.

I am, SIR, Yours, &c.

Yeſterday arrived a Mail from Holland.

THE Letters from Peterſburg which are of the 2d Inſtant O. S. ſay the Preliminaries of the Peace lately concluded with the Porte were arriv'd there, but that the Court had not yet thought fit to make them publick. How they are reliſh'd there does not as yet appear. Indeed the Count d'Oſterman had a late Conference with the Marquis de Botta the Emperor's Envoy Extraordinary, wherein he declar'd the Czarina's Concern for the precipitant Signing of the Preliminaries, becauſe if it had been put off but for a few Days longer better Terms might have been obtain'd, conſidering the happy Succeſs of the Ruſſian Arms towards the Nieſter; but the Emperor's Envoy made it out ſo plainly that the whole Tranſaction was againſt his Maſter's Intention, that there was no doubt that the Underſtanding betwixt the two Courts would remain as ſtrict as ever. The Letters add, that the Articles were forthwith to be examin'd in Council in the Czarina's Preſence; after which we ſhall know whether her Majeſty is diſpos'd to ratify them, and in conſequence to conclude a Treaty with the Porte. Mean time an Expreſs is gone from the Court of Peterſburg to their Miniſter at Stockholm, to acquaint him that the Taking of Choczim has been follow'd with the entire Submiſſion of Moldavia.

As the Preliminaries above-mentioned were ſent by Expreſs to Peterſbourg from Vienna, the Imperial Court is impatient for his Return; becauſe the Count de Munich, who 'tis thought could not but know the Subſtance of the Preliminaries before they were concluded, and was no Stranger to the Intentions of his Court, continues Hoſtilities in Moldavia, as if he was ſure that the Czarina would not ratify them.

It appears from a Journal of the Count's Expedition in that Country, that when he came to Jaſſy, its Capital, he was met 2 Leagues out of Town by the Spiritual and Temporal States of that Principality, attended by their Militia under Arms, who at the General's Approach laid down their Arms and Colours; after which the Metropolitan, in his Pontificalibus, made a very fine Speech, wherein he expatiated on the Glory of the Czarina, and the Reputation of the Ruſſian Arms, implor'd her Imperial Majeſty's Protection of the Principality of Moldavia, gave his Bleſſing to the Velt-Marſhal and the Ruſſian Troops, and then mounting his Horſe again with his Retinue, conducted the General to the Hoſpodar's Palace, where he was receiv'd with the Diſcharge of the Cannon, the Flouriſhes of Trumpets, &c. and the Acclamations of the People.

After this, we are inform'd, that the Count entertain'd the States of the Country at Dinner, ſettled a Convention with them, and gave Protections to the Citizens and Merchants, as well Jews as Chriſtians.

The Letters from Vienna ſay, That ſeveral Prelates and other Eccleſiaſticks of Diſtinction make ſtrong Intereſt for Count Wallis, to obtain of the Emperor that he may have Leave to come to Court; and they inſinuate that the Count de Neuperg is protected by ſome illuſtrious Powers of the higheſt Rank; nevertheleſs, 'tis ſtill ſaid that a Commiſſion will be appointed to inquire into the Conduct of both.

The Letters from Vienna add, that the Plague ſtill rages in Hungary, and that above 20 Counties in that Kingdom are infected with it; that above 50000 Perſons have dy'd of it in Lower Hungary, and near 30000 in Upper Hungary and the neighbouring Cantons.

They write from Dreſden, that the Vice-Chancellor of the Crown receiv'd an Expreſs on the 10th Inſtant O. S. from Warſaw with Advice, that on the 20th ult. Bender ſurrender'd to Count Munich without his ſtriking a Blow, and that afterwards the Tartars of Bialogrod ſubmitted to the Czarina.

From Hanover, that a conſiderable Sum of Money is remitted from thence to Vienna.

From Francfort, that a Marriage ſeems to be as good as concluded between the Electoral Prince of Bavaria and the Archducheſs Mary Anne; and that 'tis ſaid, that the States of the Electorate of Bavaria have already agreed upon the Free-gift which they are to furniſh upon that Occaſion.

From Bruſſels, that they talk of obliging all the Convents in the Auſtrian Netherlands to declare what Eſtates they poſſeſs either in Annuities or Lands; and that all private Legacies in favour of religious Fraternities are for the future to be prohibited.

From Leghorn, that the Great Duke being reſolv'd to be neuter in the Diſpute betwixt England and Spain, has forbid the Fitting out of any Veſſels in that Port to cruiſe againſt thoſe of either Nation.

From Paris, that 'tis ſaid an Order is gone from Court to the Marquis de la Chetardie, to ſtop his Journey to Peterſburg whither he was going in Quality of Ambaſſador.

And from Madrid, that the Ducheſs of Berwick dy'd there lately, who was the Dowager of the late Duke of that Name formerly call'd Duke of Liria.

IRELAND.

Yeſterday his Grace the Duke of Devonſhire, accompanied by a great Number of Nobility, ſeveral General Officers, and Perſons of Diſtinction, reviewed the Right Hon. the Lord Tyrawley's Regiment of Horſe in Oxmantown-green, who made a very fine Appearance, and went through their Exerciſes to the entire Satisfaction of his Grace, and all the Spectators.

We hear that the Money for the Current Service will be raiſed within the Year, on the Land Tax, Malt, and Sinking Fund; which will be of great Satisfaction to this Nation, to have it ſupplied without increaſing our Preſent Debt, or being ſubject to the Inconvencies that generally attend a Lottery: For ſhould it be propoſed to be done that Way at 3 per Cent. the Expence of Drawing would exceed 1 per Cent. on a Million: And it is beyond all Doubt, the Publick can be furniſhed with what they will want at a lower Rate.
